KEY RISKS AND RISK MANAGEMENT

You should not invest in this Fund if you do not understand or are not comfortable with the accompanying risks.

Credit Risk/Default Risk. The possibility for an investor to experience losses due to a borrower's failure to pay principal and/or interest in a timely manner on instruments such as bonds, loans, or other forms of security which the borrower issued.

Reinvestment Risks. The risk associated with the possibility of having lower returns or earnings when maturing funds or the interest earnings of funds are reinvested.

Interest Rate Risk. This is the possibility for an investor to experience losses due to changes in interest rates.

Inflation Risk. The risk that the value of investment is lower than the rate by which the prices of goods and services go up.

Liquidity Risk. The possibility for an investor to experience losses due to the inability to sell or convert assets into cash immediately or in instances where conversion to cash is possible but at a loss.

- The Fund implements a risk management policy that applies the principles of Value-at-Risk (VAR) and Modified Duration. VaR is defined as a statistical estimate of the amount of loss that an "open" risk position is unlikely to exceed during a given time period with a given level of confidence. Modified Duration is a means to measure the change in the value of a security in response to a change in interest rates. The formula is used to determine the effect that a 1% change in interest rates will have on the price of the bond.
- The Fund's investment outlets have been subject to proper screening and evaluation in accordance with LANDBANK – TBC's accreditation process and minimum regulatory requirements.

REDEMPTION CONDITIONS

Surrender of the Confirmation of Participation; subject to penalty if redeemed before the minimum holding period. For Partial Redemption, remaining balance should not be less than minimum investment.

FUND MANAGER'S REPORT

Interest rates were on a firm downward trajectory in Q2 and would likely continue to tread low for as long as the global economy remains in recession. All major central banks have followed up on more stimulus measures and vowed to espouse highly accommodative monetary policies until the global economy recovers. For its part, the BSP also cut rates again to an all-time low in June. Indeed, there were surprisingly strong results from the U.S. in terms of jobs creation and retail sales. And since China was the first to emerge from the pandemic, its economy seems to have already recovered, showing expansion in both the manufacturing and services sectors. The unexpectedly strong U.S. and Chinese economic results have on occasion, caused rates to blip up. Nevertheless, the bigger picture also shows an alarming rate of Covid-19 infections as lockdowns are eased almost simultaneously, globally. It is highly likely that the euphoria from surprisingly good economic results would subsequently dissipate as worrisome second waves of the virus eclipse the economic gains. From the foregoing outlook, global interest rates would generally stay low until a surefire vaccine emerges.

VIEW STRATEGY

Positioning for the medium-term should have been completed in March. Since interest rates are at an all-time low now, it would be foolhardy to lock in long positions at this point. The emergence of a viable vaccine could suddenly turn the tide and reverse the economic cycle. Positioning should only be for the short-term. Cleaning up poorly constructed portfolios of low YTM's at this time makes perfect sense. An added measure of vigilance wouldn't hurt too as it would pay to be reactive to developments in the direction of an effective vaccine.
