FUND MANAGER'S REPORT

The Monetary Board in their last meeting of 2017 decided to keep policy rates unchanged on the back of inflation firmly secured on target (2-4% for 2017-19). Overnight lending rate is still at 3.5%; overnight reverse repurchase rate at 3.0%; and overnight deposit rate at 2.5%. Despite plans to gradually reduce reserve requirement ratios to a single-digit, there was no substantial reason to alter the volumes at the time being.

December CPI logged at 3.3%, unchanged from November and tapering from October's high of 3.5%, bringing the year's average to close at 3.2%. The acceleration of food prices was attributed to the increased demand during the holiday season but was then balanced by a moderation in the non-food group. Another pressure was seen arising from the tax reform which is yet to be proved as transitory.

Local bond yields started flat in October to trend marginally higher towards end-November as expectations of rate hikes before year-end were renewed alongside strong U.S. growth figures and tax reform developments. The year ended with a decline in bond yields as markets prepared for the year ahead. The 10-year benchmark bond FXTN 10-60 traded at 4.82% level by end-December, while 10-year US treasury ended at 2.40% level.
